Kettering has plenty of places to buy a phone, so it is fair to ask why anyone from there would bother making the trip to Corby for a cracked screen. The honest answer is that a repair is a different kind of purchase from a new handset, and it tends to go best when you can talk to the people who will be handling your device. Free Fusion is an independent repair specialist on the High Street in Corby's Old Village, and Kettering customers regularly make the journey to us.

What they get is a straightforward conversation about the problem. You show us the phone, we look at the damage, and we tell you what needs doing. Free diagnosis is available for local customers, which means you can find out whether it is only the glass, the display underneath, or something less obvious such as a swollen battery pushing against the screen, without paying just to be told. For iPhones, screen replacement starts from £24.99, and phone screen repair for iPads it starts from £39.99.

Speed is the other reason to make the trip. Most smartphone screen and battery replacements are completed within about an hour at the Corby centre, so many people drop in, run a few errands and collect a working phone the same day. We repair iPhones from the 5 through to the 17 series, plus iPads, Apple Watches, Samsung Galaxy, Google Pixel, Huawei, OPPO, OnePlus, Sony, Nokia, HTC and Honor handsets, so an older or less common model is not a problem. If you have a MacBook or Windows laptop with a damaged screen, bring that along too. Once the new screen is fitted, it is worth testing the touch response across the whole display, the brightness and the front camera area before you leave, and we are happy to go through that with you.

It helps to ring ahead if you want to be sure we can see you at a convenient time. We are open on weekdays and Saturdays, and a quick call lets us note your model and the fault before you set off. Back up your phone beforehand if it still works, and bring your passcode so that we can test the touch response once the new screen is fitted. If travelling is not practical on the day, a postal repair via Royal Mail or DPD is also possible. Many people from Kettering bring a second device on the same trip, such as an iPad with a cracked corner or a laptop with a worn battery, and since we handle phones, tablets and laptops, it can all be looked at together.

Call Free Fusion on 01536 260 558 to talk through your Kettering phone repair, or come straight to 62a High St, Corby and we will take a look.
